

Composting

Does nature produce any rubbish?

---

Is everything recyclable in nature?

---

What can you put in your compost bin?

---

What happens to the contents of the compost bins?

---

Name 3 things that help the plants break down to make compost?

---

What 2 ways can you compost from home?

---

What must you avoid putting in the compost and why?

---

What type of composting is good for smaller areas?

---

What can you put in your home composting bin besides garden waste?

---

What can you use your home made compost or wormery liquid for?

---

Sorted Materials

Is everything recyclable in nature?

Yes

What can you put in your compost bin?

Grass, weeds, leaves and other garden waste. Food waste in some areas

What happens to the contents of the compost bins?

They are taken to special composting sites

Name 3 things that help the plants break down to make compost?

Bacteria, fungi and worms

What 2 ways can you compost from home?

Compost heap/bin and a wormery

What must you avoid putting in the compost and why?

Avoid meat, dairy and cooked foods because they produce nasty smells and can attract vermin like rats

What type of composting is good for smaller areas?

A wormery

What can you put in your home composting bin besides garden waste?

Fruit and vegetable peelings, shredded paper, newspaper and cardboard

What can you use your home made compost or wormery liquid for?

As a very nutritious plant food